About the Artists

Thomas Wilkins, conductor

Thomas Wilkins previously led a North Carolina Symphony streaming concert in 2021, featuring Copland's Clarinet Concerto and Dvořák's Serenade for Strings, and a New Year's Eve concert in 2017.

Thomas Wilkins is Principal Conductor of the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra, Artistic Advisor for Education and Community Engagement with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Principal Guest Conductor of the Virginia Symphony. Previously, he served as Music Director of the Omaha Symphony Orchestra, Resident Conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and The Florida Orchestra, and Associate Conductor of the Richmond Symphony. Additionally, Wilkins has led orchestras including the New York Philharmonic, Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Los Angeles Philharmonic, National Symphony Orchestra, The Philadelphia Orchestra, and The Cleveland Orchestra.

In 2022, Wilkins was honored with the Omaha Entertainment and Arts Awards Lifetime Achievement Award for Music, an honorary Doctorate of Arts from the Boston Conservatory, and the League of American Orchestras' Gold Baton Award. In 2018, he was awarded the Leonard Bernstein Lifetime Achievement Award for the Elevation of Music in Society, conferred by the Longy School of Music of Bard College. Other honors include the Virginia Symphony's Dreamer Award and the "Outstanding Artist" award at the Nebraska Governor's Arts Awards.

Wilkins holds the Henry A. Upper Chair of Orchestral Conducting at Indiana University. He also has served on the music faculties of North Park University in Chicago, the University of Tennessee in Chattanooga, and Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond. His commitment to community is demonstrated by his service on several boards of directors in Omaha, St. Petersburg, Tampa Bay, and Richmond. Currently he serves as chairman of the board for the Raymond James Charitable Endowment Fund and as national ambassador for the non-profit World Pediatric Project, which provides children throughout Central America and the Caribbean with critical surgical and diagnostic care.

A native of Norfolk, Wilkins is a graduate of the Shenandoah Conservatory of Music and the New England Conservatory of Music.

Symphony No. 3 in E-flat Major, Op. 55, "Eroica"

LUDWIG VAN BEETHOVEN (1770-1827)

THE STORY:

The tale of how Beethoven's Third Symphony acquired its name, "Eroica," which means "heroic," is well known. Originally dedicated to Napoleon, the work was to bear the name "Bonaparte." However, upon learning that Napoleon had abandoned the egalitarian ideals of the French Revolution and declared himself Emperor of France, Beethoven reportedly "went to the table, took hold of the title page by the top, tore it in two, and threw it to the floor." Indeed, the title page bears literal marks of the composer's indignance, for he tore through the paper when he erased the original dedication. Thus, the Third Symphony was rechristened as a "Sinfonia eroica, composed to celebrate the memory of a great man." Napoleon's reputation as the hero of the French Revolution and the great liberator of Europe, along with the origin story of the "Eroica" Symphony, provide a tempting line of interpretation for the music. Although the symphony is not programmatic (that is, it does not tell a story), scholars and listeners alike have read into the work the narrative of a hero who suffers and overcomes tragedy. Indeed, the universality of such an account is one reason why Beethoven's "Eroica" has enjoyed such renown for over 200 years.

If the "Eroica" Symphony was born out of a historic revolution, then it, too, exhibits revolutionary musical qualities, for it inaugurates Beethoven's middle, "heroic," period. The Third Symphony tears asunder the musical conventions and norms of the Classical period in a number of ways that shocked and even confused the audiences of Beethoven's time, but which we now consider undeniable traits of the composer. While symphonies composed in the Classical style, such as those by Mozart and Haydn, were written with balanced phrases and proportions, the "Eroica" does away with these attributes. The symphony itself is of epic length—about twice as long as its predecessors. And although Beethoven adheres to popular forms from the Classical period, such as sonata form in the first movement and a theme and variations in the finale, he casts aside Classical preferences of symmetry with long developments and hefty fugal sections. Just as Napoleon shook the foundations of Europe's traditional political order, so too did Beethoven upset those of its musical world.

LISTEN FOR:

- The prominent role of the horn (the protagonist) throughout the symphony—for example: bringing the orchestra back to the restatement of the theme in the first movement, the horn trio in the middle of the Scherzo, and the majestic, soaring horn lines at the end of the second and fourth movements
- Harmonic and rhythmic dissonance between the brass and strings in the middle of the first movement—the two instrument families play clashing harmonies on opposing beats
- In the second movement, the plaintive oboe melody of the funeral march and the fugue in the reprise of the music from the first movement

- The exciting metrical dissonance throughout the Scherzo: for instance, in the beginning of the movement, the beat is felt in groups of two in the strings but in groups of three in the woodwinds
- The introduction of the finale's theme by pizzicato strings and its development through creative means, such as a fugue and dances

INSTRUMENTATION:

Two flutes, two oboes, two clarinets, two bassoons, three horns, two trumpets, timpani, strings

Named musician chairs are made possible through very meaningful gifts to the Symphony's endowment. As such, these donor families are also members of the Lamar Stringfield Society.

All string players rotate stands on a periodic basis in each section with the exception of titled players: Principals, Associate Principals, and Assistant Principals.

The North Carolina Symphony is a member of the League of American Orchestras and the International Conference of Symphony and Opera Musicians.

The North Carolina Master Chorale is the Resident Chorus of the North Carolina Symphony.

Thank you to the generous individuals, businesses, foundations, and community partners who support the North Carolina Symphony through contributions each season. The Symphony's performances and extensive music education and community service programs are made possible by your support.
